Happy Birthday, Penny. I wish you were here so we could celebrate #84, The 25th to 27th were always special days for us because we would celebrate our birthdays together. In many ways we were twins separated 11 years and 2 days from birth. I learned most of what I knew from you. I wish you were here. Your evil sister has succeeded in tearing our family apart in many ways. I love you and miss you.

Penny. I live in Michigan. You'd love the change of seasons. Steve, Carol, and the kids are great. I live a couple hours from Rene, but I haven't been to Detroit yet.

I thought I had lost my final connection with Penny - one of my late sister's lifelong friends. Fortunately she (Joni) called yesterday after I hadn't heard from her in more than a month. Penny's surviving sister - who lost no love for Penny cannot share any memories and that is a shame I miss you, Penny

The greater part of a year has passed since Penny died and though we had our ups and downs I usually felt cared for in her presence. Without local family I now turn to my friends for those ties that bind. However, no longer having a big sister leaves quite a void. I miss you Penny.
