i remember when i was 6 or 5 and i would go to aunt crstals house and play with hannah me and her always had so much fun we would laugh together and play house or other childish games such ashame we had to loose this angel but heaven needed a joyful happy little girl my life wont be the same without her but i will remember her and the happiness and joy she gave me and when my time has come i will have that same happiness and joy i had when we would play together even though i miss her so much i will still remember her as a playful child and not as sick but she didnt loose the battle with cancer she won the cncer just won a couple of battles but deep down shes the winner but there will be a time when we can cure everyone with cancer and when that happens hannah will be looking down smiling
