To all Sid's family, the Bennetts express their heartfelt condolences. It's remarkable that Sid's and my dad, Roy's, collaboration began as young kids. Over the years, they wrote truly wonderful music that touched the hearts of countless people literally around the world. Together, they were even greater than the sum of their parts. The hallmark of so many of their songs was a catchy tune, coupled with wonderfully clever lyrics. And few, if any, other songwriters can match the astonishing range of performers who recorded their work -- from Duke Ellington to Louis Armstrong to Frank Sinatra to Elvis to The Beatles. From us Bennetts -- Roy, Keith, and Neil -- we'll always remember Sid and the legacy he helped create. Roy: rbenn7@aol.com Keith: keithrbennett@gmail.com Neil: neilgbennett@gmail.com

While growing up in Syosset, N.Y. on Deerpath Lane, I have fond memories of Sid and Lillian and their family. On many occasions on Friday nights I would return home and see Sid and Lillian enjoying regular get-togethers with my parents and several other neighborhood friends. The conversations of all the friends centered around their children. I remember Sidney always having a big hello and a smile whenever I would ride my bike past the Tepper House just down the block from ours. Whenever I heard "Red Roses for a Blue Lady", a smile would come to my face and I would say, "I know the person who wrote that song." May he rest in peace. Roger, Jon and Richard Glazer
