Yone Rees posted:

I met Craig in New York on November, 2016. His smile was radiant waiting for me at the Grand Central terminal for our first date. At that same place we met for the first time was where he proposed to me. I married the love of my life on November 30th, 2018. We were inseparable, there was so much love and respect and always wanted to be better for each other. Craig had an amazing personality and made new friends every where he passed by. His energy was contagious and he was loved by everyone. Craig was my rock, best friend and goofy husband, he believed in me and on my potential more than I belied in myself. I'm thankful God gave me the blessing to be loved by him, and for me to love him in life and keep loving him for as long as I'm alive. He is deeply missed every second that passes. Love you forever, my sunshine. Yone Rees.
